The 2025 Summit in Washington, D.C. showcased energy thought leaders, transformative technology exhibits, and new opportunities to make connections that help scale innovative technologies from lab to market.

Energy visionaries Secretary of Energy Chris Wright, Mark Papermaster, Dr. Lou Martinez Sancho, Ben Wilson, Jim Gable, and more shared insights on the future of energy innovation.

ARPA-E Program Directors and Fellows delivered Fast Pitches about the technical white spaces ARPA-E may explore next, including AI controls, reimagining refineries, geothermal energy, accelerated computing, and grid enhancements.

At the Technology Showcase – the heart of the Summit – ARPA-E-funded projects shared their disruptive ideas and technologies with industry leaders, investors, and innovators interested in exploring commercialization.

I was glad to see all the amazing research and interact with brilliant minds working to solve various issues in the energy sector. As a woman engineer, I was inspired to see a diverse group of researchers from various backgrounds, races and genders being represented. As a graduate student, I was struck by the kindness of the researchers who took the time to talk to me and encourage me.
